Insurance

We advise that you consult your broker to ensure that your business is adequately covered. Required insurances:

- Employers liability is a legal requirement to cover you against claims for injury at work from employees, including part-time staff and trainees
- Public and products liability protection against claims for injury or illness caused to people other than employees and damage to their property. One of the most valuable covers you can have, it also covers claims related to your goods even if these claims arise long after the goods have been supplied
- Professional indemnity insurance provides protection against the financial consequences of making errors and omissions. Professional indemnity insurance is essential for any professional organisation that gives advice or provides services in a professional capacity.

Subscriptions and fees

Subscriptions are based on UK turnover, which is to be declared at the time of application and, thereafter, within the annual returns. Turnover includes services - including general pest control, bird control and proofing, fly screening, EFK maintenance, consultancy, pest control training and fumigation (space and soil), and products - sales of pesticides, including on-line sales (ready-to-use, concentrate formulations and raw materials, fumigant gases) and related pest control equipment. Any information on turnover is received in good faith, kept confidential and only used for the levying of subscriptions. Turnover (as defined above) should be reported in full, on application and on receipt of renewal requests, with any misinformation carrying the risk of a fine or cancellation of BPCA membership. Turnover will not in any circumstances be disclosed to anyone other than the association staff.

BPCA CODE OF CONDUCT

All BPCA members are required to work within the BPCA Code of Conduct as it applies to them. New members sign their acceptance of the Code as part of the application process, and annually confirm their commitment.

We expect all members to operate within the BPCA Code of Conduct and other professional codes. The following requirements relate to all members of the Association, including all of their employees...

BE PROFESSIONAL

Members will:

- Help clients understand their products and services by providing professional surveys and quotes for potential work
- Ensure clarity in contractual issues, fulfill contracts and honour any guarantees given
- Strive for excellence – promote, enhance and encourage best practice
- Act reasonably and responsibly, and ensure compliance with all relevant legislation and regulations in the countries in which they operate
- Keep up-to-date through training and Continuing Professional Development.

CONSIDER PEOPLE AND THE ENVIRONMENT

Members will:

- Promote and encourage Integrated Pest Management as their approach to work
- Act positively to safeguard people in all that they do
- Ensure the environmental impact of their work is as positive as possible
- Behave with professional and personal integrity; be respectful, truthful and honest in their dealings.

PROMOTE THE ASSOCIATION

Members will:

- Act in a manner that supports the Association's overall objectives and reputation
- Promote the Association's mission, vision, values and standing
- Use BPCA members when referring or subcontracting pest management work
- Be supportive when working with other members, whether subcontracting or as a subcontractor, showing mutual trust and respect
- Publicise their professional services responsibly without comparison or criticism of other members
- Act respectfully towards BPCA and its members, both on and offline, including within business and private social media activity.

ACT WITHIN THE CODES OF BEST PRACTICE

Members will:

- Notify the Association of any failure to work within the Code, and of any relevant legal proceedings that may impact them, the Association or the profession.
- Work with care to ensure procedures and records meet all legal and business requirements; take care to ensure applicable and appropriate levels of confidentiality are maintained
- Comply with all competition, bribery and anti-corruption laws when doing business and supporting the work of the Association
- Cooperate with BPCA's staff and representatives when they are working to support the member; comply with all reasonable requests for information.

If a member is found to have fallen short of these requirements, they will be fully investigated in line with BPCA's complaints procedure. The outcome of the investigation could lead to a company's removal from membership.

Here's a reminder of just some of the BPCA benefits that come with your membership...

AN ACCREDITATION THAT OPENS DOORS

BPCA membership allows you to bid for contracts that require membership, as well as demonstrate your commitment to quality and professionalism to prospective clients. Wear your member logo with pride and use it on your documents, vehicles and uniform.

MEMBERSHIP ASSESSMENTS TO THE BS EN 16636 STANDARD

Yearly assessments to the UK's most stringent pest management standards. Get all the support you need to prove to your clients that you're fit for the fight and stand out from the rest.

FIND A PEST CONTROLLER

Your own company profile on BPCA's website, and client referrals from the nation's favourite 'find a pest controller' tool.
